GOKb: Electronic resource offerings as linked open data

John Mark Ockerbloom
University of Pennsylvania
Linked Data for Libraries Workshop – February 24, 2015
What is GOKb?

• Global open database of electronic resources (ejournals, etc.) and packages available to libraries from various providers

• Primary audience: E-resource librarians choosing what to acquire, from where, & how

• Open license (CC0), multiple interfaces (interactive site, APIs, and soon linked data) enable reuse and recombinations

An enhanced knowledge base
At its core, GOKb is a knowledge base that will describe electronic journals and books, publisher packages, and platforms in a way that will be familiar to librarians who have worked with electronic resources. GOKb aims to go further
