VIVO

[Note: The text below is an excerpt from the VIVO Wiki, discussing the features and services of VIVO, a member-supported, open source software and an ontology for representing scholarship.]

Search the VIVO Wiki

- Additional search options

VIVO Calendar

- The VIVO 2020 Conference was held June 16-18, 2020 as a virtual event. Watch the talks online at the TIB AV Portal. See VIVO Conference for the program.
- Conferences Attended and to Attend lists upcoming conferences of interest to the VIVO community. If you are attending an upcoming conference, please add to the list, and consider organizing a VIVO session or presentation.

Upcoming Meetings

About VIVO

- A short tour of VIVO | FAQs | Considering VIVO
- The latest version of VIVO is 1.12.0, released in June 2021. See what's new
- VIVO is used at many institutions around the world
- Learn how membership supports VIVO and become a member today
- VIVO 2021 Annual Report

VIVO developers and implementers

- VIVO is a Java Enterprise application built around the Jena Semantic Web Framework. See GitHub
- VIVO technical documentation
- Join the Development Interest Group
- Want to quickly install and evaluate VIVO? Install a VIVO Vagrant

The VIVO ontology

- VIVO uses a collection of ontologies to provide an extensible data standard for describing scholarship
- Join the Ontology Interest Group to help manage the VIVO ontology.
- SPARQL is the query language for semantic data. Learn more about SPARQL.

Participate in the VIVO community

- Join one of the VIVO email lists to participate in discussions, ask questions, learn more
- Follow us on social media – Twitter, Facebook, LinkedIn, blog
- To edit this wiki or post issues to the VIVO JIRA issue tracker, request an account from sysadmin@duraspace.org.
- Contact wikihelp@lyrasis.org for assistance with problems logging on to or accessing this wiki.