

Community page mockups

Proposed design objectives -

- To offer an opportunity to browse meaningfully, for those who are not searching for something specific, and approach from "top down" (probably home page)
- To provide greater context to those who land directly on an item page. (And then travel "up" to community page with breadcrumbs or other link)
  - Convey the community's prestige, purpose, breadth, level of activity, or other quality
- To assure members of that community that this is a legitimate, trustworthy place to deposit materials
- To assure visitors from elsewhere that this is a legitimate, trustworthy place to find materials
- To provide opportunity for serendipitous discovery
- To provide a platform to share specific information on behalf of that community. (ie, via "news" widget)

Proposed page elements -

Using existing features

- Format Logo, title, description, handle link, and rights statement nicely with adequate whitespace
  - keeping in mind that any of these elements may be absent, if the metadata does not exist
- Add sidebar on the right
  - Search box, news box, browse all items by title, etc... box, most downloaded / recently uploaded widget
- Main Content area –
  - Has list of sub-communities and top-level collections

New feature ideas, arising from our user interviews

- Breadcrumbs. Offer sense of place (grounding) and serve as navigation
- For each sub-community / collection – provide a lot of information, as much as possible
  - Description. This is really important.
    - Can we make at least a short description a required field?
    - If not, can we emphasize in the submission form links how valuable it is?
  - Badges indicating the number of items of each entity type therein
    - These should be links – leading to faceted search results?
    - In the case of an "empty" collection, a badge can provide that information
  - Unfolding accordion which reveals the sub-communities / collections inside.
- News widget. It would be super useful if its label could be customized as well as its content.
- In addition to most downloaded / recently uploaded, what about "featured" items?

Mockups (works in progress)

Great Lakes University of Kisumu

The idea of establishing the Great Lakes University of Kisumu originated in the Tropical Institute of Community Health and Development (TICH) in Africa, which spearheaded the application for authority to operate as a university. The establishment of TICH was inspired by a number of sources expressing the need for a formal course in Community Based Health Care leading to a recognized academic qualification. Such a course would be offered by an academic institution that could effectively weave together theoretical, evidence based and practical hands-on analytical skills training into development, conducted in learning sites located in the community, civil society, industry and public institutions.

It was thought that an Institute with the freedom to innovate but linked to an established University would be the best base for such a training program. The Institute was established in 1998 to respond to these challenges and to make a contribution towards the paradigm shift needed for the achievement of sustainable development at various levels particularly in Africa. In this respect, GLUK subscribes to the philosophy of self-propagated development, which is made sustainable through communities' own participation. The idea has attracted some of the best and most renowned brains in the country to nurture the young University to excellence in the fields of health, development and related disciplines. Their involvement ensures the necessary academic rigor while permitting flexibility and responsiveness required in producing graduates that are problem solvers and job creators.
