William Welling 8:51 AM

[VIVO i18n Standup]

Finished yesterday:

- None

Working on today:

- VIVO-1870: i18n - Inadequate "No Entry for that Letter" message when browsing alphabetically

- VIVO-1837: i18n: Anonymous class labels include hard-coded English words

Blockers:

- VIVO-1837: Still have yet to find a reasonable way to bring I18NBundle into VClassDAOJena. I have investigated getting a I18NBundle from a ServletContext and a Locale which seems to be a plausible approach. If the RDFService available is language aware attempt getting preferred locale/s from the set of languages else use system default locale. The ServletContext is obtained via a ServletContextAware interface and presents testing issues of existing VClass tests. What I see as a significant disconnect is the difference between a request based I18NBundle and a context based I18NBundle (new concept). The request I18NBundle is retrieved by order of: forced locale on context, selected locale on request session, or the first of previously set locales on the context. Now if we attempt to use only the servlet context to retrieve a I18NBundle we will not be assured to have the selectable locale. However, we will be able to locate the files on the context path using the ServletContext. I am open for more discussion or another perspective on desired strategy for this issue.

Side Note: I highly suggest integrating dependency injection in order to afford injecting singleton beans, prototype beans, session beans, and request. This will simplify these such issues and afford massive cleanup throughout the code base. No longer would classes have to arbitrarily pass objects from one to another sometimes making them class members and sometimes not.
